Rooms

Andaz Mayakoba Resort Riviera Maya's 214 open layout rooms and suites all have views: it can be the lagoons, mangrove and resort gardens; the golf course; or the Caribbean coastline. Plus, each room has a spacious balcony or terrace and the 41 suites feature private plunge pools. The design of the rooms is grounded by an 'area rug' crafted from a collection of locally produced Mexican cement tiles as well as a signature Mayan décor item such as a traditional mask, a Mayan huipil or a colorful bird figure while the rest of the room is minimalist in design with color tones inspired from natural terrain such as stone, sand and water. There is also a minibar in every room featuring a range of complimentary local snacks and beverages.

New Programs

The property recently launched "From Mexico to Andaz" series, a culinary and immersive cultural experience designed to spotlight different regions of Mexico through local partnerships and resort experiences. The series has five planned volumes, including Oaxaca and the Yucatan. Each region is spotlighted for three months. For each region highlighted, guests will be treated to a variety of local flavors and cultural activities representative of the destination, from special menu items, tastings and local produce to jewelry, crafts, artisan workshops and more.

Conservation

The resort participates in the Marine Turtles Conservation Program along with the other properties in the Mayakoba complex. This program helps ensure that turtles are taken care of during the nesting season, including clutch translocation into a turtle camp until the baby turtles hatch. When the babies are born, guests are invited to witness their very first contact with the ocean. It's a great way to educate guests and also provide a safe sanctuary for the turtles.
